

DAILY NEWS

September 24, 2010

DAILY NEWS NYDailyNews.com

YOUR HOME

The Atlantic Antic has plenty to offer kids and adults alike fashion and craftsmanship," this event is a costume party for those intrigued with the time when steam power ruled the world. Look for fashionable outfits, creative facial hair and an H.G. Wells science-fiction feel.

For a rundown of all the events, go to dumboartsfestival.com. To get there, take the F train to York St. or the A/C to High St. All the art galleries, furniture stores and clothing boutiques will be open. For a beer or a meal, check out Superfine at 126 Front St. All the food is organic, and the pool table is free all the time. The founding sponsor of the event is Two Trees, a real estate company that puts culture first and has spearheaded the arts movement and condo conversions in the neighborhood for the past decade.

festival starting point and close to the stoop sale.

Last but not least, the Dumbo Arts Festival runs from Friday to Sunday. The entire neighborhood comes alive with street performances, music, art events, literary readings and tons of things for kids. This event is a total visual extravaganza with digital arts, food and family programming taking over this quiet neighborhood. One highlight this year is the Steampunk Salon Saloon. Billed as a "celebration of Steampunk culture,

TYRUS FLYNN

A cultural event will recall the age of steam power